

November 28, 2016

NIH Implementation of Final Research Performance Progress Reports (Final RPPR)

The National Institutes of Health has announced that the Final Progress Report (FPR) will be replaced with the Final Research Performance Progress Report (Final RPPR) through a new eRA Commons module effective January 2017. On or after that date, NIH will no longer accept FPRs.

Below are useful links to learn more about this implementation:

NIH Announcement

Please review the announcement (NOT-OD-17-022) to learn more about the background and implementation of the Final RPPR.

RPPR Website

FAQs and additional information pertaining to NIH's implementation of the F-RPPR will be available on the NIH RPPR website.

ORA Website

Please visit our website to view additional announcements and information at ora.miami.edu.